

Advising Guide for select majors in CAS for students entering FALL 2020

Art History: ACA and ACC in the Arts and Cultures Sequence count as one elective toward the major, though not applicable towards the minor. Note students that receive a 5 on the AP Art History exam are exempt from survey courses (History of Western Art I and II), and should therefore begin with an advanced course.

Dramatic Literature: ACA and ACC in the Arts and Cultures Sequence can be counted toward the major in Dramatic Literature if completed with a minimum grade of C, and will be applied toward the pre-1900 literature requirement and one elective course. This reduces the total requirements to complete the major by two classes, though students are still expected to complete History of Drama and Theatre I & II.

Economics: Students majoring in Economics can take Microeconomics and Macroeconomics in LS; though students are encouraged to take one of these introductory courses in CAS. In addition, students need to meet the prerequisites for Mathematics for Economics I in the freshmen year, and should begin the math sequence for the major no later than sophomore year. Note AP credit in Microeconomics and/or Macroeconomics (awarded with a score of 4 or 5) is acceptable toward the major, and reduces the total number of courses required. AP credit in Statistics, however, does not count toward the major, and must be taken at NYU. No requirements for the Economics major may be completed during a J-Term.

English: Liberal Studies students will receive credit for two requirements toward the CAS English major, providing a C or higher was earned in the Arts and Cultures Sequence (ACA, ACC and ACM). The specific requirements satisfied are (a) the pre-1800 requirement and (b) one major elective. This reduces the total number of classes for the major. Students interested in registering for the introductory course in the major, Literary Interpretations, should contact the department for assistance, either Professor Jini Watson (jkw1@nyu.edu) or Prof. Nicholas Boggs (nicholas.boggs@nyu.edu).

Environmental Studies: Environmental Studies (ENSTU-UF 101) offered through Liberal Studies counts toward a core major requirement ENVST-UA 101 if taught by Prof. Nagle; counts toward a major elective ENVST-UA 200 if taught by Profs. Naro-Maciel, Douglas or Owen; or counts as a topics-based elective ENVST-UA 450 if taught by Prof. Whittington

European Studies: The Arts and Cultures Sequence (ACA, ACC, and ACM) and Global Works and Society Sequence (GWA, GWC and GWM) together satisfy two requirements for the major in European & Mediterranean Studies, specifically one social science elective and one culture elective for the major. This reduces the total requirements to complete the major by two classes.

History: Toward the major in History, three courses are accepted from Liberal Studies. In particular, GWA fulfills the Pre-1800 requirement, GWC fulfills an introductory requirement in European History, and GWM fulfills an elective in the major. This reduces the total number of courses required to complete the major in History.

International Relations: Students must complete POL-UA 700 International Politics, and either ECON-UA 1/ECI-UF 101 Introduction to Macroeconomics or ECON-UA 2/ECII-UF 102 Introduction to Microeconomics prior to transition.

Journalism: Journalism is offered as a second major (or co-major) only. Students should make sure to register in JOUR-UA 501 Investigating Journalism no later than their fourth semester in the Liberal Studies Core to complete the major sequence on time.

Music. The department of Music in CAS will accept Arts & Cultures Antiquity toward the major either as an elective or a course satisfying the "Music, History & Culture" category.

Politics: GWA and GWC will count towards one general elective for both the major and the minor in Politics. Note students still need to complete two core classes for the major (chosen from the four introductory core options).

Public Policy: GWA and GWM satisfy the Ethics & Justice requirement in the Public Policy major, reducing the total number of courses required for the major.

Updated 4/2021

As requirements change, the information on this worksheet might not be accurate. Students should always check with the major department for the most current graduation requirements.