IMPORTANT NOTE: Students interested in transition to Gallatin must have an academic concentration plan approved during sophomore year. In particular, students are expected to participate in two workshops during the fall semester to develop a proposal for their academic concentration, and submit the written proposal by December 1st.
Degree Requirements for Gallatin

For students who transition from Liberal Studies, the Liberal Arts Foundation Requirements are already satisfied by course work completed in the Core Program. Students must nonetheless complete the Historical & Cultural Foundation Requirements, which consist of both a pre-modern and early modern period class.

- Four (4) Gallatin Interdisciplinary Seminars IDSEM-UG (16 credits)
- 16 credits of additional courses offered through Gallatin (16 credits)
- Math or science
- One (1) Pre-Modern Period Course (4 credits), completed through Gallatin or CAS*
- One (1) Early Modern Period Course (4 credits), completed through Gallatin or CAS*
- One (1) Colloquium COLLQ-UG 1 (2 credits) with Presentation
- One (1) Senior Project INDIV-UG 1905 (4 credits)
- Total units required to graduate: 128 credits

*Some Gallatin Interdisciplinary Seminars will satisfy the pre-modern or early-modern foundation requirement, and also count as one of the Interdisciplinary Seminars IDSEM-UG

Examples include advanced writing courses, arts workshops, community learning courses, travel courses, global programs, Interdisciplinary Seminars, and other options (independent studies, tutorials, internships, etc)

Non-Course Requirements for Gallatin:

- Transition Plan for Concentration, completed prior to transition into Gallatin
- Intellectual Autobiography and Plan for Concentration, completed during first semester at Gallatin
- Rationale and Booklist, completed as preparation for the senior colloquium

Pre-Modern and Early Modern Requirements

The ‘pre-modern’ period traditionally extends from the world of antiquity, from the earliest records of human civilization up to the emergence of early modern social, political, and technological regimes (14th-16th centuries CE). Examples of "Pre-modern" courses include "Ancient Theatre and Its Influences," "Reading the Faces of Ancient Cultures," "The Arabian Nights," "The History of Kindness," "Archaeology: Early Societies and Cultures," "Civilization and Culture of the Middle Ages," "Classical Mythology," "The Oases of Egypt," "East Asian Art I: China, Korea, Japan to 1000 CE," "Introduction to Ancient Indian Literature."

The 'early modern' period is understood to begin in many regions around the 14th century, and to continue to the 18th century, or, depending on geographic region, to the late 18th or 19th century CE. Examples of "Early modern" courses include "Literature of Rebellion in Early Modern Europe," "Machiavelli's Prince," "Shakespeare and the London Theater," "History of Environmental Sciences," "Shakespeare's Mediterranean: Britain, Islam and the Early Modern Mediterranean World," "Family and Gender in Late Medieval and Renaissance Italy," "Magic, Religion, and the Inquisition," "Two Mediterranean Worlds: Christendom and Islam," "Early Masters of Italian Renaissance Painting."

Transition Plan & Intellectual Autobiography and Plan for Concentration (IAPC)

A Transition Plan should for the individualized concentration should be completed and approved during sophomore year (in advance of transition). This should further serve as a basis for the Intellectual Autobiography and Plan for Concentration, which will be submitted for final approval during the first semester in Gallatin following transition.

The IAPC is a three-page essay describing your intellectual interests and a set of specific objectives for shaping these interests into a Gallatin concentration. You will work with Gallatin advisers to compose this essay, but students are expected to have begun articulating an academic concentration prior to matriculating at Gallatin (through the Transition Plan).

Residency Requirement & Transfer Credit Limitations

Gallatin has determined that 64 credits in residence with Gallatin, completed under the guidance and mentoring of a Gallatin faculty adviser, is the minimum amount of course work and time required for students to develop a proper concentration and establish an individualized program. Therefore, students who transition to Gallatin will be eligible to receive a maximum of 64 credits upon matriculation at Gallatin, and all students must complete a minimum of 64 credits while matriculated in Gallatin. Please note students are therefore not recommended to take summer or winter courses (unless behind in credits).

 Due to residency requirements and the IAPC, students are not permitted to study away during their first semester in Gallatin.

Advanced Standing Credit

No Advanced Placement, International Baccalaureate, or A-Level credits can be used to fulfill Gallatin’s Foundation requirements.

Updated May 2021: As requirements change, the information on this worksheet might not be accurate. Students should always check with the major department for the most current graduation requirements.
